The Creating Hope Society of Alberta is a non-profit organization based in Edmonton. It was established to address the ongoing impacts of the Sixties and Seventies Scoop, where many Indigenous children were removed from their families and communities, continuing the legacy of the Residential Schools era.

The society focuses on providing support and advocacy for Indigenous children and families involved in the child welfare system. They aim to halt the cycle of child welfare involvement and promote healing and well-being within Indigenous communities.

Their programs include educational initiatives, cultural events, and support services designed to foster a sense of community and belonging. They also host events like National Indigenous Peoples Day celebrations and offer various volunteer opportunities.

St. Paul Education serves a large rural/urban area in Northeast Alberta, including St. Paul, Elk Point, Two Hills, Mallaig, Ashmont, Myrnam, Heinsburg, and four First Nations: Saddle Lake Cree Nation, Whitefish Lake #128, Frog Lake First Nation, and Kehewin Cree Nation.

Formed in 1995 from the amalgamation of five school boards, St. Paul Education is unique in Alberta for operating both separate and public schools under one board. The division's diversity—religious, linguistic, and cultural—is a source of strength.

Serving 3,833 K-12 students, including Catholic, First Nation, Mennonite, Hutterite, and Home School learners, the division employs about 240 FTE teachers and 345 support staff across 19 school sites.
